VOLUME V.

SPRINGFIELD, KY., WEDNESDAY, JULY 21, 1909.

NUMBER 33

...REV. AUSTIN P. FINLEY...

The above is a likeness of Rev. Austin P. Finley, who will conduct a series of revival meetings at the Christian church, beginning July 25. Bro. Finley is a man of great power and full of the spirit of Christ. In a revival at Chattanooga, Tenn., he more than doubled the membership of the church, and in Memphis, Tenn., he added one hundred. "Come to hear him at Springfield." We, as a people, stand for the union of all the followers of Christ, even as the Master prayed, "that they may all be one, that the world may believe that thou didst send me."—John 17:21. As the means of accomplishing this union, we advocate the restoration of Apostolic Christianity. We hold that believers in Christ should wear no religious titles but those given to them in the New Testament; all other names tend to perpetuate divisions. We hold that humanly devised creeds and disciplines likewise foster the sectarian spirit. We require of persons who seek membership among us only those things required by the Apostles—a confession of faith in Jesus as the Christ the Son of the living God, accompanied by repentance and a submission to the ordinance of baptism. We, as a church, meet on the first day of every week for worship, instruction and the observance of the Lord's Supper, as was the uniform practice of the early church. I cordially invite all of the ministers of the town and their congregations to come and worship with us during the meetings.

...Oklahoma City...

The following article was written by Mr. Finley Scroggs, a former Springfield boy, who is now "making good" in the real estate and insurance business in Oklahoma City, Okla., and will be of interest to many of The Sun's readers:

From a barren prairie to a beautiful city of 50,000 people, with 85 miles of paved streets; a street car system of 40 miles, a half million dollar hotel and ten magnificent skyscrapers is a wonderful growth for half a century, yet this is what Oklahoma City has done within twenty years.

The street railway company has now under course of construction a million dollar terminal and office building. Morris & Co., the great Chicago packing firm, has recently let the contracts for a four million dollar packing plant, and it is conservatively estimated that by 1912, Oklahoma City will have a population of 100,000.

This is not a boom town, but her growth has been steady and substantial since the day twenty years ago when the territory was first opened for settlement. The city is the exact geographical center of the large and fertile State of Oklahoma, which stands today first among the States in the production of oil, first in gas, first in asphaltum, third in coal, sixth in cotton, seventh in cattle, ninth in corn and twelfth in wheat.

Oklahoma City's jobbing business for 1908 was $23,000,000.00, increase of thirteen per cent. over 1907; manufacturing, $7,000,000.00, increase of six per cent. over 1907; retail, $16,000,000.00, increase of twenty-five per cent. over 1907.

There has long been a belief among the manufacturers and financiers of the East that there would be a large jobbing center in the Southwest, somewhere West of Memphis. Recent developments have made this prediction come true and Oklahoma City is now acknowledged to be the favored city on account of her location, having the largest trade territory of any city in the Southwest. Kansas City lies to the North at a distance of four hundred miles, on the East six hundred miles away is Memphis, six hundred miles South is Galveston and 1,700 miles to the West is Los Angeles, leaving Oklahoma City in the center of a vast and fertile territory of nearly half million square miles.

Oklahoma City being the distributing center of a large portion of this territory, when the Panama Canal is opened, much of New York's traffic will naturally be deflected to some port on the Gulf Coast. The trade for this Southwest territory will naturally be distributed through its trade center which is Oklahoma City. The effect of this trade upon this city can easily be foreseen.

Oklahoma City is also a railroad center being entered by four large trunk lines, e. g., the M. K. and T., the Santa Fe, the Frisco and the Rock Island. The increase in passenger receipts of these four lines for 1908 over 1907 was twenty-five per cent., while the increase in freight receipts was forty per cent.

The above data and statistics show the substantial foundation upon which Oklahoma City's prosperity rests.

With a $300,000.00 high school, three ward schools now under course of construction, ten public schools already built, a large university, with prospects of another in the near future, Oklahoma City feels that she is providing ample facilities for the education of her youth.

The religion of a people being the most determinative principle of their civilization, a review of Oklahoma City's enterprises would not be complete without mentioning the wonderful growth of her religious institutions. It is sufficient to say that today she has forty-five churches of all denominations, representing a value of $1,000,000.00. The St. Luke's Methodist Church was the last erected, having just been completed at a cost of $100,000.00.

To say that Oklahoma City is the most wonderful city in the United States for her age, does not prepare the new comer for the many surprises and varied opportunities which this Queen City of the Southwest has in store for him.

WAREHOUSE COMPANY

Directors Met Monday and Transacted Important Business.
Twenty-five Per Cent. on New Stock to Be Paid.

The board of directors of the Washington County Tobacco Warehouse Company held a meeting July 19, 1909. A large amount of important business was transacted, consisting principally of reports of building and other committees, all of which, were approved by the board and shows that satisfactory progress is being made in both new buildings and other improvements, indicating that by the time the tobacco is ready for market every facility will be prepared by the Washington County Tobacco Warehouse Co. for the maintenance of one of the best tobacco markets in Kentucky, thus securing to every grower the highest market price for his tobacco whether his crop be large or small.

At a former meeting of the board it was determined to sell at par $8,000.00 more of the capital stock of the company, and with the proceeds of this stock construct additional buildings and make other necessary improvements. This was made necessary as originally only $7,000.00 of the stock of the company was sold, thus making the whole issue of stock $15,000.00.

At the time it was determined to sell $8,000.00 of additional stock it was thought there would be considerable difficulty in finding purchasers for it. But when the subscription lists were examined it was found that twice the amount offered for sale had been subscribed for, when the board of directors reduced the subscriptions so that the $8,000.00 of stock was distributed among the various subscribers, on an equitable basis, to which the subscribers all agreed.

Before any subscriptions were accepted, it was determined that the owners who had paid for the original issue of $7,000.00 of stock had been without the use of their money for some time and that they were entitled to some consideration, when the board declared a dividend of ten per cent. on all the original $7,000.00 stock paid for before July 19, 1904. As the company needed all money in hand at this time with which to pay for buildings in process of construction, it was determined it was best that the ten per cent. dividend should not be paid until after January 1, 1910, when the money would be on hand for that purpose without interfering with payments for improvements now under way.

The directors ordered a payment of twenty-five per cent. on the subscriptions for the new stock stock, the remainder to be called for in installments of twenty-five per cent. as the work on the improvements progresses.

As to the old stock subscribed and not paid for it was determined that all of such subscriptions not paid for by August 1, 1909, should be canceled and any notes given therefore to be returned to the parties who executed them.

A committee was appointed to audit the accounts of the secretary and treasurer who were empowered to employ an expert accountant to assist them in their work.

This committee will make a full report to the board at some time in the near future which will be published for the information of all the stockholders.

Don't Get a Divorce.

A western judge granted a divorce on account of ill-temper and bad blood. Dr. King's New Life Pills would have prevented it. They cure Constipation, causing bad breath and liver trouble, the ill-temper, dispel colds, banish head aches, conquer chills. See at Haydon and Robertson's.

SOMEWHERE.

(As the Practical Point men it.)—and so some of our Springfield merchants should see it.

Somewhere "between the dawn and dusk" There is a quiet hour. When Love looks deep into your eyes From out his leafy bower: Somewhere he waits to come to you. Love-timely and love-wise—

But it might hasten things a bit. If you would advertise.

To Win The Independent Vote.

SENATOR BENJAMIN H. TILLMAN.

"I am not advocating an independent party," said Senator Tillman in his St. Louis address to the Modern Woodmen of America, though much of the speech was devoted to the giving of reasons why the people should vote independently as well as intelligently.

The South Carolina Senator has never given voice to sounder common sense. There is no room in this country for an independent party at the present juncture, and there will be none. The fight for the House of Representatives next year and that for the presidency three years hence will be fought out between the Democratic party and the Republican party. Both contests will be decided by independent voting.

Mr. Tillman's advice as to voting is good, but superficial. Nearly every great political contest is decided by the independent voter. Voters who are Republicans in one election and Democrats in the next are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. In 1910 and in 1912 they will be counted by the millions. The Democratic party can win them or hold them only by offering convincing assurances that it will, if successful, do the things they want done.—Elizabethtown News.

Enterprising Firm.

Among the most enterprising and up-to-date Springfield business firms is that of Katie Hertlein & Bro. They are now showing the 20th spirit of giving the people the best service for the least money by installing in their confectionery the finest soda fountain in this section of the State. The woodwork of the fountain is of hardwood. It is equipped in the latest manner. The soft drinks are kept ice cold by liquid air and when served will be much more palatable than when cooled by crushed ice which dilutes the drink. The fountain will be open tomorrow and Miss Katie and Chris invite their patrons to call and see it.

29th Annual Picnic.

LARGE ATTENDANCE

At Teachers' Institute.—Public Exercises at Opera House Last Evening.

When the Washington County Teachers' Institute was called to order Monday an exceptionally large number of teachers were present. Prof. G. W. Colvin is chairman of the Institute, while Prof. A. S. Mackenzie, of Kentucky University, is instructor. This is Prof. Mackenzie's first visit to Springfield, but he is making a fine impression by his straight forward and practical talks, suggesting to the teachers many ideas that will benefit them and pointing out to the public wherein it may be by its support not only encourage the teacher but produce better general educational conditions in Kentucky.

It is to be regretted that Supt. J. W. Bush is ill and so far has been unable to attend the Institute.

The exercises held at the Opera House last evening in connection with the Institute were both enjoyable and instructive. A musical program was rendered by some of the townspeople while Prof. Colvin, Hume, Durham and Mackenzie made brief addresses on the functions of the teacher in education. The speakers pointed out the fact that the duty of the teacher is a sacred one and that his greatest compensation consist in the development and achievements of the child whom he has trained. They made plain, however, that the teachers are not being sufficiently compensated materially for the work that they do and the ends they accomplish.

Another evening, Thursday, will be given over to exercises similar to last evening, to which the public is again invited.

CHANGES HANDS.

J. C. McElroy Purchases Interest of O. D. Hatchett.—New Firm To Be Known as McElroy & Shultz.

It is very seldom the case that good business men after several years of earnest endeavor find themselves where they started, yet this is true of two of Springfield's most prominent merchants. Messrs. A. R. Shultz and Jas. C. McElroy have been traveling in a circle. For eighteen years the hardware firm of McElroy & Shultz, composed of the gentlemen above named, was one of the best known concerns in this section of the State. Several years ago Mr. McElroy sold his interest to Mr. P. G. McElroy, the firm then becoming Shultz & McElroy. After a time the name was changed to Shultz & Riedel, Mr. J. W. Riedel having succeeded Mr. McElroy. After being in business for a short time Messrs. Otho Hatchett and Sam J. Anderson, under the firm name of Hatchett & Anderson took over the business. Several weeks ago Mr. Anderson sold out to Mr. Shultz and the firm was christened Shultz & Hatchett. Now Mr. McElroy has purchased the interest of Mr. Hatchett and the circle has been completed.

To McElroy & Shultz, successors to McElroy & Shultz, et al., The Sun wishes all kinds of success.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the Best and Surest.

"It affords me pleasure to state that I consider the preparation known as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the best and surest of good results of any I have ever used in my family," says P. E. Herrington, of Mount Aerial, Ky. This is the universal verdict of all who use this remedy. Its cures are so prompt and effective that people take pleasure in recommending it. For sale by the Leo Haydon Drug Co.

CREAMERY ASSOCIATION

Directors Meet and Discuss Plans For Future.—Committee Appointed to Convene.

The stockholders of the Washington County Creamery Association held a meeting at the law office of T. Scott Mayes to determine what disposition should be made of the property belonging to the corporation. Because of the lack of cream the creamery was closed July 1, and has not since then been in operation.

A committee was appointed to investigate conditions and report next Saturday upon the advisability of reopening. If enough of the farmers will pledge cream it is probable that a wagon will be run by the company on certain days of the week to gather up the milk, thereby saving the farmers and dairymen the time and trouble of delivering at the creamery.

Springfield and Washington county, like many other Southern districts, is almost without manufacturing and business enterprises of this kind and when it can easily be demonstrated that this business will be a boon to the community it should not be allowed to fail. Every man having cows should subscribe cream and help to make the creamery a success and at the same time make money for himself.

Quarterly Court.

Two cases were tried out in Quarterly Court on Monday. The first was Tim Royalty vs. Will Hatchett and John Foster for a balance due on some tobacco sold by plaintiff to defendants. The defendants pleaded a breach of warranty. Considerable time was taken up with the evidence and argument before the case was finally given to the jury. The plaintiff was given the full amount for which he asked $30. An appeal will be taken to the Circuit Court.

In the suit of Lloyd vs. Carney the plaintiff was given $15 damages for corn alleged to have been destroyed by the defendant's hogs. The plaintiff asked for $30.

The other cases on the docket were either continued by Judge B. L. Litsey or judgment by default was given.

Bank Statement.

In another column of this paper will be found the statement of the Peoples Deposit Bank, called for by Secretary of State as of date July 8. According to recent ruling of our State officials all State Banks will be called on to make statements of their condition from any bank date, thereby causing State Banks to be ready at all times to make legal statements. This statement of July 8 shows Peoples Deposit Bank to be in strong growing condition.

The regular Semi-Annual statement of said Bank made June 30, shows gross earnings for first six months of the year to be $8,880.92. After paying all expenses to date and all Taxes for year 1908, left a net earning of 8 per cent. for six months, which should be very satisfactory to its stockholders.

Automobile Line.

The people of Springfield are now enjoying the novelty of an automobile line between here and Lebanon. The cars were put on yesterday making several trips during the day. They are of the type generally used in the West and are well adapted to purposes of this kind. The car will make four daily trips, leaving here at 8:30, a. m., 1 p. m., 5 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. The fare is $1 or round trip $1.50.

FARM AND STOCK

Items of Interest to Farmers and Live Stock and Poultry Raisers.

Don't tolerate loafers. A hen that won't work will get into mischief.

Keep the drinking water in the cool place possible. Sun will quickly affect the water.

These hot, sweltering days and shady retreats are a blessing to both old and young fowls.

Remember a few drops of tincture of iron in the drinking water at this time is good for your fowls.

Feed only what the chicks will clean up at once. Don't allow feed to lay around and become filthy before the chicks eat it.

Sunshine is a cheap tonic and disinfectant. Let it sweeten up the ground and coops. Spade up your yards, rake in some grain and let the birds scratch it out.

Fowls are naturally hardy, and contagion in a flock is due to carelessness on the part of the poultry keeper. This is proved by the fact that expert poultry raisers have very few sick chickens.

The pullets intended for layers next year should have been hatched in April and May, and even earlier with the larger broods, and they should be run along so that they will begin to lay about November.

About this time of the year look out for the bug of neglect in your garden. It is the most destructive of any you will have to contend with.

Don't wear a misfitting collar. A sore or swollen shoulder will most certainly result. Then your horse will be on the pasture when you need him at the plow.

After the fruit is off the raspberry canes, cut them out and burn them. The sooner this work is done the better. Hoe and cultivate the new canes (which are to bear fruit next season) until August.

The aim of the poultry keeper ought to be to make his fowls comfortable and contented, and when this task is accomplished he can rest assured he is in a safe way to secure an abundant yield of eggs.

If horses or colts have worms try feeding them raw potatoes thinly sliced. You will probably have to mix the potatoes in with the grain at first sight to get the horses to eat them. A few raw potatoes each week are good for a horse at any time.

As an egg gets older, says the Spotula, the water contained in the white of an egg evaporates, and thus causes the empty space at the thick end of the egg to become enlarged. The larger that empty space becomes the more the egg rises in the water, till in course of time it floats.

Caring for the brood mare is no hard task if a gram of common sense is used. The mare should not be worked too hard, although a daily useful exercise is advisable. She will be better off if she is given something to do during the period that she is carrying the colt.

A woman in Vermont says that from 60 pullets and 12 yearling Rhode Island hens she sold last year eggs to the amount of $262.62, not counting the eggs used in a family of four. Feed, advertising, etc., cost $84.77, making a net of $177.85. These hens laid 8,745 eggs.

A Wisconsin mail fed one of his cows $50 worth of feed last year, and her pasture, feeding, milking and stabling cost $11.50, but she produced 90 worth of butter, $17.70 worth of manure, $1 worth of skim milk and a calf worth $5, making her total income $114.

Plant more trees. In a few more years they become a big paying investment. Utilize every available space on the farm for this purpose. Plan to never let a year go by but that you have put in a few trees. It is too late to set any old now to make up your mind that you will put some in the fall and next spring.

The Alabama State Veterinarian's report gives a complete account of the year's battle with live stock diseases in the State. A large amount of territory was practically cleared of ticks, thus offsetting to some extent the $2,000,000 annual loss they are estimated to cause in Alabama. Tularemia, glanders, hog cholera, sheep scab and rabies are all dealt with at some length in the report.

Bloody or reddish milk may be caused by blows on the udder, or by inflammation from other causes, and is not uncommon in summer when a sudden congestion of rich food may induce local congestion, with increased flow of milk. Lay says, "If the discolored milk is caused by congestion, a saline laxative followed with nitre, a restricted diet and frequent bathing of the udder with very cold water is useful."

Well bred or even good grade pigs should weigh 60 to 80 pounds when weaned at three months of age, and should then go on alfalfa, clover or other fresh green pasture, and have corn twice a day. Late in the summer there should be ready for them a pasture of rape, field peas or soy beans besides the corn. If their teeth become sore, change to shelled corn, soaked twenty four hours in water, slightly salted.

Perhaps the fall is the best time to start in the poultry business, for then the foundation stock can be purchased for less money than at any other season. The hens will then be accustomed to their new quarters before they begin to lay in the spring, and have nothing to interrupt the good work. Where the beginner is experienced in the care of young poultry it may be wise to buy eggs and start with the young birds, but otherwise it will be better to purchase mature fowls and obtain some experience in their care before attempting to raise young ones.

It is often necessary to plaster a wound up before a veterinarian has time to arrive, and therefore it may not be amiss to give a simple recipe for making sticking plaster. It is as follows: Tallow, two ounces; Burgundy pitch, four ounces. Spread on linen while hot. To make an effective plaster, melt the following ingredients over a slow fire till dissolved, and then with the fingers rub the paste into the part affected: Cantharides (pulverized), four ounces; turpentine, two ounces; English resin, two ounces; beeswax, two ounces.

CHOCOLATE LAYER CAKE.—Grate enough sweet chocolate to make eight tablespoonfuls and dissolve it or work to a soft paste in a half cup of hot milk. Cream a half cup of butter and a cup of sugar, add five eggs, beaten light, then the melted chocolate and milk, a teaspoonful of vanilla and enough prepared flour to make a good cake batter. Bake in layer tins and put the layers together with a white frosting.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh of the Eustachian Tube, and in some cases it is the result of a malarial condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (not caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CROWLEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, etc. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Mr. H. A. Sommers, Editor News, Elizabethtown, Ky.—My dear Mr. Sommers:—In the issue of the News of July 13, I find the following editorial, which in part, is error:

"Hon. Wesley Stanley, the talented and brilliant Congressman, is entitled to a large part of the credit for the passage of the bill taking the six cents tax off tobacco. He introduced the bill in Congress six years ago and has been fighting for it since. This bill allows tobacco growers to manufacture their own tobacco without a tax upon the same and as the manufacture of smoking tobacco requires a very small expense the removal of the tax will be worth a great deal to tobacco growers."

The Bradley amendment to the Aldrich bill only authorizes the buyer of tobacco "in the hand" to sell that tobacco "in the hand" to whosoever he may desire without the payment of the six cents tax, as required under the Dingley act. The tobacco grower has always had the right to retail his leaf tobacco free of taxation, but the Dingley law, in order to protect the tobacco trust, did not permit the purchaser to retail the tobacco without the payment of the six cents tax, consequently the grower could sell only to individuals who wanted leaf tobacco for their own personal consumption.

Therefore, the "privilege" guaranteed under the Bradley amendment is practically worthless to the grower. The amendment does not give the farmer or grower, the right to "manufacture" his tobacco as stated in your editorial. Many farmers and newspapers are laboring under the same error, and, if the mistake is not corrected, some of the growers may get into trouble with that "very wily" revenue agent. Just twist a hand or two of tobacco and sell it to somebody and that mercenary agent, who is paid to look after the interests of Uncle Sam, will bounce upon you with his Talons of law.

If the grower would keep out of trouble he should bear in mind that "twisting" is "manufacturing," and if he disobeys this injunction of the mighty ones he is liable to a fine of several hundred dollars.

The only important change the Aldrich bill has made in the tobacco schedule is the increase of from six to eight cents a pound on manufactured tobacco. And this change was made to further assist the Continental Tobacco Company, or trust, in its notorious and nefarious effort to wipe the independent manufacturer from the face of the earth.

But that is neither here nor there. The thing for the growers of tobacco to remember is that they are forbidden to twist, press, grind, crush, or otherwise prepare their tobacco for the retailer in a manufactured state. They can not manufacture without paying eight cents per pound tax.

The Bradley amendment not only does the grower no good, but, rather, it

The Coroner last week held an inquest over the corpse of the infant discovered in the well of Mr. B. B. Leachman, near Beechland. The coroner's inquest developed the fact that the infant was a colored girl baby which had apparently been thrown in the well three or four months prior to the discovery of the body. Sufficient information to place the crime on any one could not be gathered.

Mr. Wood Milburn was quite severely hurt last week when at work for the L. & N. Ry Co. Mr. Milburn is a section hand and while at work on some ties a splitter fell from one of them, striking him in the eye. Since then he has been unable to work but his injured eye is improving and there is no fear of his losing his sight.

Mr. J. R. Mayes, County Road Supervisor, suffered quite a loss Saturday morning in the death of his buggy mare. Friday Mr. Mayes drove the mare to Fredericktown. While he was attending to some business in connection with the bridge he turned the mare loose that she might graze. He thinks that while grazing she must have gotten hold of some paint or some other poison as she appeared to be suffering from poison of some kind. When it was discovered that the mare was ill a veterinarian was summoned but his efforts were unavailing.

Strong Statements.

In this issue of The Sun statements of the cottons of The Farmers Bank of Mackville, and of the Central Bank of Williamsburg, appear. These statements are required by the Secretary of State and were made July 8th, 1909. Both of these Banks are flourishing institutions. While both are comparatively young banks and are situated in small towns they are nevertheless thriving. Both banks are well managed and directed and as both are in fine agricultural sections they will no doubt grow with years and prove indispensable to their respective communities.

In buying hogs or any other animals, always put in quarantine before putting them with your other animals.

The high price of butter fat makes it expensive business raising calves that are allowed to suck their dams.

Begin early to teach the colt to lead. It is a simple task when he is small but not so easy if left until he is a year or two old.

Be careful about the feed for the horses this spring. Get them onto a full grain diet gradually. Begin the hard work gradually, too.

Give the horses water when returning from the field, then before feeding them their grain ration let them chew on hay for half an hour.

Turn the cows onto the pasture half a day at a time to start with, and then only after a good feed of hay. This will prevent serious trouble with scours.

A kunny sack and a piece of paper make good materials to rub the plow share off with after the day's work is done, and they will keep it as bright as a mirror.

An orchardist whose apple trees were badly girdled by rabbits during the winter tried with good results bags filled with fresh cow manure and tied snugly over the girdled spots.

Kindly handling of the young stock will make them more tractable when full grown. The animal whose early recollections tell of blows and harsh words will never feel that confidence in mankind which the one will have that has only known humane treatment.

Here's to the poor farmer. How can he have a merry time when he has nothing to live in but a big house, nothing to shelter his horses but a warm barn, nothing to eat except everything that grows out of the ground or can be bought at the store, no way to get his mail except having it brought to him every day by a smiling mail carrier who will soon be wearing Uncle Sam's uniform with shining brass buttons, no way to get to town but with a rubber-tired buggy or auto, no way to make money but by selling 50-cent corn, 35-cent butter, 55 hogs, 27-cent eggs and have his farm double in price once in a while? While you are enjoying your Sunday dinner don't forget to drop a tear for the poor, down-trodden farmer man.

There are several varieties of trees which make good windbreaks. The government experiments have proved that white pine, Norway spruce, Austrian and Scotch pine and American arbutus have no superior. These kinds all grow rapidly and are not lacking in vigor or adaptability to this soil, exposed situations and other adverse conditions. But do not plant evergreens exclusively about the home. Deciduous trees occupy a place in any scheme for beautifying lawns which confers alone do not and cannot fill. When surrounded and completely enveloped in a dense growth of evergreens, a style of planting somewhat prevalent a few decades ago, and of which examples are even now occasionally seen, a residence becomes dark, gloomy, dismal and sometimes dangerous to health.

Here is some good advice to remember when buying a farm. Three things should be high, the house, the orchard and the spring; three should be low, the hay barn, the taxes and the price of the farm, says American Cultivator. Three things should be thick, the top soil, the mowings and the wood lot; three thin, the insects, pests and foul plants. Three things should be near, the neighbors, the markets and the schools; three should be distant, saloons, traps and borrowings; three should be scanty, hogs, droughts and early frosts; three should be infrequent, mud, mosquitoes and meddlers; three should be abundant, wood, water and labor. Three things should be deep, the well, the cellar and the purse. Three things should be wide, the fields, the road and the heart. Three things should be light, the grades, the living-room and the moral gauge.

Feed the little chicks little and often.

Hard to find a better feed for hogs than alfalfa.

Feed little and often is the rule in raising the colt by hand.

Sheep must be provided with shelter where they can take refuge in storms.

Chicks in April mean eggs in December—that is if their chicks are kept growing.

Fill up the big swallows and provide a cement basin for the hogs to bathe in. It will pay.

In setting out strawberries spread the roots out fan shaped and be careful not to bury the crown.

It takes the right kind of feed to grow a good crop of fence, but when grown it is money in the owner's pocket.

The bull calf can be spoiled by improper care. At six months of age regular exercise should be provided for him, such as a tread mill.

Plant a shelter belt to the north of your farming buildings. You will be surprised to see what a protection it will prove when well grown.

If skim milk is obtained from the creamery it should be sterilized to make certain that you are not bringing tubercular germs onto the farm.

If you are feeding the calf skim milk, put something else in to take the place of the fat removed. Oil meal is good. A little corn meal is also good.

The habit of calves sucking each other's ears would not be so easily formed if they were given something to chew on, such as dry bran, for instance.

Always room for improvement, whether in farm methods, farm crops or farm animals. Rest not content with the present standards. Always aim higher.

It won't hurt to put the little chicks out of doors if you provide dry shelter for them where the mother hen and little chicks can take refuge in time of storm.

Keep the sheep near the barn at night and in an inclosure to which dogs cannot easily gain access. The dogs are not apt to bother the sheep if kept near the barn.

Any sudden change in diet of the farm animals is a shock to the system which will take the animal some time to recover from. Begin the changes from winter feed to grass, gradually.

On the farm, where it is the wise policy to give the chickens the range of the land, it is wise to fence in the garden plot with wire fencing. It will save the garden from many a foraging expedition on the part of the chickens and will keep you from doing a lot of worrying.

Now is the time of year when the struggle comes with the young turkeys. They are a hard bird to raise, sometimes, but give a handsome profit where one is successful. Leave the newly-hatched birds in the nest a couple of days, and then remove to a pen built of 12-inch boards out in the grass. Keep them there until they are able to fly over. Feed as you would young chicks. When they get to roosting off be sure they are brought up every night until they are a month old, when they will not be any further trouble. It is well to keep feeding them a little every night in order to keep them in the habit of returning to the house.

Everything depends upon the way a tree is set as to whether it does well and makes good growth. If the following rules suggested by a practical orchardist are observed, it will be found that the task will not only be easier but better done. Dig holes from two to three feet in diameter, and from 12 to 18 inches deep, according to the size of the tree. Cut away the parts of roots bruised in digging. Shorten the top. Plant only a trifle deeper than the tree stood in the nursery; excepting dwarf pears, which should be deep enough to cover the pit stalk on which they are budded. An assistant is very helpful when setting trees; two men, or a man and a boy, can work together to good advantage. A wire measure is better than a cord; wire won't stretch. Stick a bit of solder on the wire exactly where each tree is to come. An occasional "sighting" of the tree rows from side to side, both ways, will enable planter to detect crooked places. On windy, exposed fields, it is an excellent plan to incline the newly-set trees slightly toward the northwest; the trees will straighten as they grow. Don't let tree roots lie around in sun and wind, unprotected; as fast as an armful of trees is dug from the hedging place, wrap the roots in a blanket until all are set. Don't bunch or crowd tree roots together—spread 'em out; and be sure to fill in around the roots with fine, good soil, lightly rammed or firmly treading it into place so as to leave no air-pockets. Look out for crown or root rot, or San Jose scale; better burn infested trees. Manure should not come in direct contact with tree roots; apply it as a mulch or plow it under. Better not dig holes much in advance of tree setting. Soil dries out quickly, and roots need moist earth around them.

Sayings and Doings of the Press At Large.

A whole lot of moral dyspepsia gets through the world labeled "Religious flavor."

The publicity agents of the summer resorts seem to be earning their salaries.—Courier-Journal.

At a cost of $250,000 a cooking school is to be established at the Winona Technical Institute in Indianapolis.

"Are you my nearest relative?"
Asked a small kid of his ma.
"Yes, son," she laughingly replied,
"And the closest is your pa."

Don't get it mixed in your head and believe for even a moment that your moral yardstick is the sole standard of morality.

A California woman fasted for 49 days. With a will like her, a man could snap his finger at the tariff on necessities.—Henderson Gleaner.

The sunshine's ever brightest, the breezes' weight lightest, maidens' eyes are bluest, their little hearts are truest in Kentucky.—Judge Mulligan.

If we were not unhappy some we'd worry more.
For happiness would soon become a dreadful bore.
—Louisville Herald.

It is well to remember every day and hour the reason you have only one hangover but two ears is that it is right and proper for you to tell it more than half you know.—Barrington Blade.

A friend of ours told us yesterday what a barber who was cutting his hair said to him: "You have a large head, sir, and a large head means a large brain. A large brain is the most useful thing a man can have, as it nourishes the roots of the hair."—The Argonaut.

In consideration of the fact that the suffragettes are bent on sweetening the country, it would be well for the rising generation to learn to hum a ditty worded something like this:

Sing a song of sixpence, pocket full of holes,
Kiss a girl named Kate, because mama's at the polls.
When the polls are opened, greet how the ballots ring!
And ma will drop in at midnight too tired to say a thing.

The Illinois man who taught his ducks to pick bugs from potato vines will probably not be so chesky now that a Maryland woman is developing a breed of one-legged chickens so that her garden asps may not be scratched up.—Kentucky State Journal.

But the good old Methodists will sadly miss the other leg or those chickens at the frying-size age.

A gentleman said to us: "My dog is loaded with fleas and when he isn't scratching at the busiest dog that I ever saw, but he is accomplishing nothing. There is a young fellow in my neighborhood who has a Waterbury watch and smokes cigarettes. When he isn't winding his watch he is stoking a match to his little poisonous cigarette. He is a mighty busy young man, but he isn't of as much value as a last year's bird nest. My dog's occupation is commendable compared with that of the young man."—Ex.

Though Mary Ruth is only a 2-year-old, her advice is good enough to repeat. She said to a sweet lady yesterday, "At it's you must be awful 'eet." The little tot's grandma is seventy one and any emergency Mary Ruth can meet. So after grandma suggested compliments to her replied: "Miss Rena say you're mighty 'eet."

Man, proud man, dressed in a little brief authority, most ignorant of what he's most assured, has vulgarized the common barn-yard fowl. The rooster's musical notes at 3 a. m. is to man only a noise and the crowing-bird is considered only a murderer of the sleep that knits up the ravaged sleeve of care. The hen's song of rejoicing over the new-laid egg man regards as only inexpressible yanity and hilarious egotism. Fluffy, conceited man who over-estimates his little bit of work in the universe is, to the detriment of that noble fowl's industrial reputation, compared with the hen that has just laid an egg that is perfectly beautiful. All this shows a deplorable lack of breadth and imagination. It is the man who is the egotist, not the hen. He can't appreciate the clarion cry of the rooster that hails the coming of the light, offspring of heaven, first-born of the eternal celestial beam. Man is a delusion at best.—Toronto Star.

Which One.

One of us, dear—
But one—
Will sit by a bed with marvelous fear—
And clasp a hand
Growing cold as feet for the spirit land,
Daring, which one?

One of us, dear—
But one—
Will stand by the other's coffin bier,
And look and weep,
While those marble lips strange silence keep—
Daring, which one?

One of us, dear—
Which one—
By an open grave will drop a tear,
And homeward go,
The anguish of an unshared grief to know—
Daring, which one?

One of us, darling, it must be,
It may be you will slip from me;
Or, perchance my life may first be done;
I'm glad we do not know.
Which one? 28—Selected.

If you are a business man, did you ever think of the field of opportunity that advertising opens to you? There is almost no limit to the possibilities of your business if you study how to turn trade into your store. If you are not getting your share of the business of your community there's a reason. People go where they are attracted—where they know what they can get and how much it is sold for. If you make direct statements in your advertising see to it that you are able to fulfill every promise you make. You will add to your business reputation and hold your customers. It will not cost as much to run your ad in this paper as you think. It is the persistent advertiser who gets there. Have something in the paper every issue, no matter how small. We will be pleased to quote your advertising rates, particularly on the year's business.

IMOGENE

BYRON WILLIAMS

AWAY BACK in the rosy distance, in the land of little girls with hair braided down their backs, Imogene glanced across the aisle at me and casting one quick eye to see if teacher was looking, pointed at my hands and whispered: "Dirty!"

And when I feigned ignorance of the whisper word, she spelled it on her dainty fingers, in the letters of the deaf and dumb alphabet.

With a heavy heart I went home that night and surprised everybody by asking for scouring soap and soft water.

In the kitchen sink, I laundered those hands as they had never been laundered before. They came out so beautifully white that even I was proud of them until Verne whispered to mother that I was in love!

Next Imogene taught me by divers insinuating remarks, whispered across the aisle, to keep my fingernails clean. Mother marvelled. She had labored tenaciously to this end, without avail. Imogene's teeth were as white as pearls and showed gleaming and pure between her red lips. She had a pretty way of exhibiting the crown in those days—and one day I awoke to the realization that mine were neither white nor pure. How the gums gave up their blood that night!

And thus, little by little, a boy's love was modeling me into a beau ideal. To be sure, the promptings were all given clandestinely, in the school-room aisle. On the school ground my preference for Imogene was now and then exhibited by a sudden switch at her long braids, which she always assumed great indignation and called me a booby, or something equally despicable. But in her heart of hearts I knew she was only trying to hide her confusion at love's first awakening.

And then one night, under the glinting stars, I walked home with her. That was the beginning of the end. In another month or so she had donned long skirts—and me, who that girl did rush into womanhood! I was still in my baseball age when she married a telegraph operator and went out of my life forever!

I can see her now as she looked the day before her wedding, which was in June. She was beautiful and there was a glow of health and joy in her face that boded ill for me. I passed her house and saw her emerging from the garden, radiant and happy. I slouched by with my baseball mask under my arm, worried and sick at heart.

"What makes a girl grow so much faster than a boy?" I was asking myself over and over. And all day long I was disconsolate and sad. Imogene, the girl who had taught me to keep my hands and my teeth clean, the girl who had instilled in me neatness and pride of personal appearance, Imogene, my first love, was going away!

Five years later when I saw her, she had a face like a hatchet, a squalling baby and waddled when she walked.

Phyllis and I.

Phyllis lives upon the hill Where the sun is glowing. She has caught the rose's flush From the spiny's blowing. In a garden Phyllis sits, Preening to the breeze. She is rich and Phyllis does Anything she pleases!

I am just a lowly maid, Neither rich nor witty. Phyllis' clothes are made in France— Mine are merely pretty. She has lovers by the score— I have none but Billy. He WILL have me, yes or no, Sure or willy-nilly!

Phyllis does not know her heart— Does not trust the stars. When a maid has wealth and place She has adroit wiles! But a simple maid like me Knows the truth willy-nilly. There is no one in the world Quite so nice as I!

A Minnesota woman lost a diamond from her ring. Just as she caught sight of it in the grass, a bluejay darted in front of her and swallowed the jewel. She offered a reward of $250 for the recovery of the prize and after all the town boys had failed, a country boy caught a bluejay in a figure four trap. Upon killing the bird and investigating, the boy found there was no diamond in the bird's intestine.—BYRON WILLIAMS.

The ABC and XYZ of ADVERTISING

A SERIES OF TEN TALKS ON ADVERTISING No. 3

Written by Seymour Eaton of Philadelphia

The owner of a retail hat store writes me to ask how to advertise hats.

I don't know. I haven't thought much about hats. Ten to one I should do something revolutionary; perhaps advertise to buy the customer's old hat. As a rule he is glad to get rid of it. Of course that would cut the profit in two, but then the sales would multiply by ten, or perhaps by fifty, and the store would get talked about.

Perhaps I wouldn't do that at all. I make the suggestion simply to let this hat dealer know that if I owned his store I should get up and shake myself; make some sort of a noise; not stand around behind the counter leaning on everything, waiting for a customer who is six blocks away on the other side of the street going north to change his mind, come back, cross over, and by mere chance in his hurry notice that I have hats in my window.

Tell a hundred thousand men who wear hats and who buy two hundred thousand hats a year that you have the goods; the kind they are looking for. If that doesn't wake them up then give away a hat-band and a necktie and a pair of gloves; cram the hats full of ham sandwiches; do something. Your business is to sell hats, not store them.

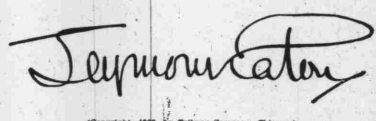

I have no patience with the retail dealer who depends on the sidewalk and the weather for his trade.

But it isn't necessary to be sensational; simply make readable news of your advertising. It is the business of the newspapers to distribute news and if I want a moderate priced stylish hat your advertising is ten times more interesting to me than the Associated Press dispatch that some galoot in Oklahoma or Texas hanged himself.

Good advertising is news. Print this on the ceiling over your bed so that you will read it first thing every morning when you wake up.

Keep your eye on fashion.

Fashion is today the biggest influence in the world; not necessarily the best influence; but the biggest. We don't control fashion; fashion controls us. It always comes down the pike with a whirl. When the storm breaks haul in your advertising canvas and stop buying. Fashion hurricanes are short-lived.
